Les Portes de Bordeaux Sauvignon Blanc

French wines are generally labeled by their appellation (i.e., Bordeaux, Burgundy), whereas American or "New World" wines tend to be categorized by grape varietal (i.e., Cabernet, Chardonnay). So when you see "Bordeaux" on a wine label, what's inside may include a variety of grapes, but will typically fall within a certain style of winemaking specific to the Chateau (winery/vineyard) that has crafted the wine. Les Portes de Bordeaux Sauvignon Blanc, a single varietal French wine, is a New World take on an Old World style.

Les Portes de Bordeaux Sauvignon Blanc, comes from one of the largest Chateaux in the Bordeaux appellation. Our winemaker set out to make a crisp, citrusy white wine that's simultaneously typical of the region and an exceptional example of the varietal. Success in this endeavor is evident on the nose, in the mouth, and in the finish. Tangy and fresh, with lemon and grapefruit notes, the wine is lively, aromatic and characteristically balanced acidity. Enjoy this wine with fish, shellfish, or light pasta dishes. And enjoy its price of $5.99 for each 750ml bottle. This is a terrific value you'll find only at your neighborhood Trader Joe's.

 Les Portes de Bordeaux Sauvignon Blanc is currently available in Trader Joe's stores where wine is sold. It is $6.99 unless otherwise noted: CA: $5.99; OH: $8.99. Alcohol availability & price may vary due to state laws, taxes, shipment fees & other such stuff. (If we could, we would.)*
